DR. BETTY PRICE TALKS RELIGION AND INFIDELITY IN NEW BOOK 'WARNING TO MINISTERS, THEIR WIVES AND THEIR MISTRESSES'

Author Lyah Beth LeFlore Gets Serious in New Novel 'Wildflowers'

Lyah Beth LeFlore hasn't given up sipping Cosmos and shopping for Christian Louboutin's. But the Chick Lit author, who penned glitzy page-turners like "Last Night a D.J. Saved My Life" and "The Cosmopolitan Girls" (which she coauthored with Charlotte Burley) turns serious with her new novel, "Wildflowers" (Broadway Books, $13.99). In this moving, multigenerational saga, jet-setting Hollywood publicist Chloe Davis Michaels crash lands after her kuh-razy husband goes postal on her. Chloe returns to her Midwestern town with just $23 in her pocket to "get prayed up" by seven colorful bold women in her family. Think "Divine Secrets of the Ya-Ya Sisterhood" for Black folks. LeFlore says the recession has taught her to focus on what really matters: love and family. "How many more pair of shoes can you buy? How much bling can you have? Money is tight and it's a real situation. Fluff can be fun, and I still lov escapism, but we also need to think about feeding our mind and soul too."-- Patrik Henry Bass

"Wildflowers" is in stores on September 8, 2009.
